Dear Sirs

Revised Himalaya Clause for bills of lading and other contracts

The International Group of P&I Clubs (IG) and BIMCO have completed a review of the Himalaya clause for use in bills of lading and other contracts, and, as a result, have drafted a revised Himalaya clause. Members are recommended to amend their contracts of carriage to incorporate this new clause.

A Himalaya clause is a contractual provision intended to confer a benefit on an entity that is not a party to that contract. This benefit, in a contract of carriage such as a bill of lading, is to exempt, as far as possible, the servants, agents and independent contractors employed by the contractual carrier (the carrier) from liability to other parties to the contract, such as the shipper, consignee or holder of a bill of lading, or extend the same protection from liability enjoyed by the carrier.

Why is it called Himalaya?

The Himalaya clause takes its name from an English legal case involving a ship called the Himalaya. A passenger was injured on the ship. The passenger ticket contained a non-responsibility clause exempting the shipowner from liability, so the passenger sued the master and the boatswain. The Court held the master liable. Significantly, the Court decided that it would have been possible for the shipowner to incorporate a clause excluding its employees from liability into its ticket conditions, but, it had not done so.

A consequence of the Himalaya case is that clauses in contracts of carriage were developed to ensure, as far as possible, that no liability attached to the carrier's servants, agents and subcontractors, only to the carrier, and failing which, the carrier's servants, agents and subcontractors had the benefit of any limits, exemptions and defences enjoyed by the carrier. Claims would, as a result, generally, be brought only against the carrier and not against its servants, agents and subcontractors (e.g. stevedores) and other independent subcontractors (such as railroad companies.)

Key features

Himalaya clauses are complex and it is impossible to produce a clause that operates successfully on every occasion and in every jurisdiction. The aim of BIMCO and the IG has been to produce a clause which should be given effect to in most of the major jurisdictions, including the USA and UK.

The Clause is primarily intended for use in bills of lading, although with care it can be adapted for use in charter parties and other marine contracts. Parties using the Clause must take care to ensure that it achieves its purpose when incorporated into different types of contract. For instance, when used in bills of lading or other documents containing or evidencing contracts of carriage, the terms 'Carrier' and 'Merchant' will need to be defined and the definitions will need to reflect the parties' intentions, which may vary from contract to contract. Where necessary, the IG/BIMCO recommend that any amendments to the Clause are only agreed after obtaining appropriate legal advice. Members are welcome to contact the club for assistance.

In summary the Clause is intended to:

- wholly exempt a contractual carrier's or other contracting party's servants, agents or subcontractors from liability under a contract (and/or to confer on such servants, agents and subcontractors all the rights, limits, defences and exemptions from liability enjoyed by the contractual carrier under that contract;
- impose on the other party to the contract, defined in the Clause as the 'Merchant' (which term includes a shipper, consignee or holder of a bill of lading), an obligation not to sue any servant, agent or subcontractor of the contractual carrier, and to indemnify the contractual carrier in the event that the Merchant makes a claim, whether under the contract or in tort, bailment or otherwise, against the servants, agents or subcontractors of the contractual carrier;
- facilitate as effectively as possible the protection of its intended beneficiaries, by providing that the contractual carrier or other contracting party acts as an agent or trustee for its servants, agents or subcontractors in relation to the contract, and that such servants, agents or subcontractors are deemed to be a party to such contract;
- provide protection in respect of operations relating to the carriage of goods but which are not necessarily carried out on board a ship, for example operations which take place before loading or after discharge from a ship or operations involved in multi-modal carriage.

However, depending on the jurisdiction in which liability may arise, the protection of the Clause cannot always be guaranteed.

All clubs in the International Group are issuing a similar circular on this subject.
