The Standard Club has once again joined forces with Videotel to produce a set of 10 short video clips, Hazards: Series 2.

These are 10 short films which graphically illustrate common incidents and the tragic consequences that ensue. Incidents are initially shown with the incorrect procedure. In the second part, the same sequence is shown but this time correct procedures and working techniques are followed, showing how incidents can be avoided before they can even occur.

Aimed primarily at cadets, deck and engine crews, students at maritime colleges and training officers, the clips are eye-catching and confront the potential severity of the results of some easily avoidable mistakes. Shot using real crew doing real work, these films concentrate on training points and pull no punches in delivering them to the audience.

Each film is accompanied by a chapter in the support booklet which summarises the main hazards and precautions to take to avoid them. The chapters can be used as an agenda for safety discussions and as a guide for crew members.
